

A lot of home shopping happens online when you can peruse listings, neighborhoods and information. But we know that you still like to load up the car and drive around looking at homes and communities in person. Your self-guided tours happen at any time of day, any day of the week. Wouldn't it be great if you could put the information of every property for sale right there in the car with you, instantaneously?

NextHome's Mobile Connect does just that. You can easily narrow down which properties in an area have the potential to be your dream home. Save time, money and gas.

Anytime you see a home of interest, pull out your mobile device. You can text into our system and we'll immediately send back details and photos about that listing and any other listing.

How? All you have to do is ask us for our unique text code and you will have access to information on all active properties in your area. It's free and easy!
